Find out how the neighborhood you select for your new unit can affect your family's opportunities in life.

From opportunityinsights.org/neighborhoods:

"In a series of studies beginning in 2014, [the Opportunity Atlas has] shown how the neighborhoods in which children grow up shape children's outcomes in adulthood."

The Opportunity Atlas "presents estimates of children's chances of climbing the income ladder for every 70,000 neighborhoods across America."

"The Opportunity Atlas also provides information on other key indicators such as incarceration rates, college attendance rates, fertility rates, and marriage patterns."

Based on these studies, the Opportunity Atlas shows "that neighborhoods affect children's long-term outcomes through childhood exposure effects: every extra year a child spends growing up in an area with better outcomes on the Opportunity Atlas causes the child to have better outcomes in adulthood."
